What College Means to Me: College is a ticket out, like a key to a door with limitless opportunities behind it. Going to college allowed me to go to places I would have never been, meet people I would have never met, and experience activities I would have never even known about. College not only gives kids a chance to expand their minds, but also provides them with the time and space to discover themselves. This skinny kid from East Baltimore found himself in college, and uncovered a passion inside, fighting for the most vulnerable in our criminal justice system, that would become the driving force for the rest of his career. I am forever thankful for that, and eternally grateful to CollegeBound for helping to make it happen.

The Lawyers' Campaign for CollegeBound: For 26 years, CollegeBound has helped tens of thousands of low-income and first-generation Baltimore City students realize their dreams of a college education. This year, Rosedale Federal Savings & Loan will maximize your contribution through an unprecedented $100,000 Challenge Match. By giving to the Lawyers' Campaign, you're giving young people the chance to transform their own lives, to increase their opportunities, and to enrich the social and economic fabric of our city.
